Many Colors Are We - Lesson Plan

"Variety is the spice life!" Variety is the spirit of life too. To uphold our shared humanity is to value distinction in the kaleidoscopic theater of human life around our tiny world!

WE are a many faceted jewel, we humans; both as a collectivity and each and every single one of billions! Our sameness, our shared depth of feeling and meaning and purpose is exalted by our respect for different expressions!

This is a "pro-biotic" mindset! Yes! It says - live and let live! Celebrate the extraordinary variety that is the human spectrum! To want everything to conform to a uniform perspective is, in fact, "anti-biotic"! The antibiotic principle wipes out diversity, distrusts life! By analogy, monoculture farming is the most vulnerable to disease. Bio-diversity ensures immunity and continuance.

What we wish to engender are "symbiotic" relationships!

This is one of the beautiful challenges of world citizenship - rising above our cultural prejudices and perspectives; of truly promoting an expansive field of choices for generations to come; of truly fostering innovation and natural genius in the sparky young lives in our care - in a symbiosis of respect, trust and compassion.

How we are INSIDE ourselves, is how we are with the world! Trust life!

Many Colors Are We is one of those rare songs that touches our deep humanity. The human kaleidoscope is a living encyclopedia! It is breathtakingly beautiful, tender and powerful, sensuous, mysterious and stark all at the same time. It can be overwhelming. But there it is, for us all to behold, to take in, to reflect, to uphold...each in our way.

We'll let the song, the images and narrative speak for itself...

Enjoy!
